Training Amidst the Waves

James soon discovered that being a part of the Hong Kong Marine Police required more than just a deep love for the sea. Rigorous training sessions pushed him to the limits of physical endurance and mental agility. From learning advanced navigation techniques to mastering swift boat handling, each day brought new challenges and invaluable lessons.

On Patrol: Battling Criminals and Navigating the Unknown

With his training complete, James found himself patrolling the waters surrounding Hong Kong. From intercepting drug smugglers in high-speed chases to controlling unruly crowds during protests, every day presented a different adventure. The blue uniform became a symbol of authority and pride, as the marine police protected the city and its people with unwavering commitment.

Rescues at Sea: A Race Against Time

Beyond law enforcement, the Hong Kong Marine Police also serves as a crucial rescue unit during emergency situations at sea. James vividly recalls a harrowing incident when their team responded to a distress call from a sinking vessel. Amidst treacherous weather conditions, they braved the waves, rescuing stranded individuals just moments before the boat sank into the abyss.

Camouflaged Conservation Efforts

While enforcing laws and ensuring public safety takes precedence, the Hong Kong Marine Police also plays an active role in protecting the marine ecosystem. James recounts his involvement in operations combating illegal fishing practices and safeguarding endangered species. From confiscating illegal fishing gear to partnering with environmental organizations, the marine police actively contribute to the sustainability of Hong Kong's waters.

A Bond Forged in the Depths

As time went on, James developed deep bonds with his fellow officers. Their shared experiences, long hours at sea, and facing life-threatening situations together created an unbreakable camaraderie. The tight-knit community of the Hong Kong Marine Police became James' second family, providing support and friendship in the face of adversity.

A Lifetime of Memories

Now, after years of serving the Hong Kong Marine Police, James looks back with a sense of fulfillment. The adrenaline-fueled operations, the resilience required, and the breathtaking beauty of Hong Kong's waters all provided him with memories that will last a lifetime. His journey from an Englishman on foreign shores to an esteemed member of the Hong Kong Marine Police has been nothing short of extraordinary.

Joining the Ranks

If you have a passion for adventure, a commitment to public service, and a desire to protect the shores, consider joining the Hong Kong Marine Police. It is a career path that offers unique challenges and gratifying experiences for those willing to embark on this remarkable journey.

'Les Bird joined the Hong Kong Marine Police in 1976 and saw the last years of the hard-working, hard-drinking colonial policemen handing out rough justice in the World of Suzie Wong. He was one of a handful of senior officers dealing with sensitive issues including refugees fleeing Vietnam and the smuggling of guns, drugs and people to or from Communist China in the leadup to the handover of the colony back to China in 1997. Filled with gripping stories spanning twenty years, A Small Band of Men follows Bird and his mentor, “Diamond” Don Bishop, an eccentric officer whose volatile temper and larger-than-life personality was a major influence in Bird’s career. Supported by his second-in-command, Joe Poon, Bird gained the trust of his band of men to such an extent that they followed him into danger, even at the risk of their own lives.’
