Hurdles in Reading Arabic

While the Arabic script is undoubtedly aesthetically pleasing, its complexities can pose challenges for learners. Many Arabic letters have similar forms, and their shapes can change depending on their position in a word. Additionally, vowels are often not written, making it difficult to determine the correct pronunciation. These factors, coupled with the absence of short vowels in most printed texts, can make reading Arabic a daunting task.

Furthermore, Arabic learners may also struggle with understanding the meaning of words due to a lack of vocabulary or unfamiliarity with certain grammatical structures. This can impede their ability to comprehend written Arabic texts and inhibit their language learning journey.
