Even the sun needs to learn a thing or two! This joke adds a humorous twist to the idea of the sun attending school. It's a light-hearted way of reminding kids about the importance of education while bringing out a chuckle.

3. How do astronauts serve their drinks?

In flying saucers!

When it comes to serving drinks in space, astronauts have their own unique way of doing things. This joke cleverly combines the concept of flying saucers with the serving of beverages, resulting in a fun and imaginative image that will surely make your kids laugh.

4. What do aliens use to fix their spaceships?

Galactic glue!

Aliens encounter many problems while traveling in their spaceships, just like humans with their vehicles. This joke plays on the idea of using a distinct type of glue to fix spaceships, adding an element of silliness to extraterrestrial problem-solving skills.

5. Why did the astronaut bring a ladder to space?

Because he heard the moon was a great step forward!

With dreams of exploring the universe, astronauts are always looking for opportunities to take a step forward in their journeys. This clever joke incorporates the idea of the moon being a great step forward, highlighting the dedication and ambition of astronauts in a lighthearted manner.

6. What sound do planets make when they collide?

Kablooey!

Planetary collisions might sound disastrous, but in this joke, they become a source of amusement. The word "kablooney" adds a whimsical touch, making it a funny representation of what happens when two planets collide. Kids will enjoy the playful sound and image created by this joke.

These funny out of this world jokes are perfect for kids who have a fascination with outer space. They combine the wonders of the universe with humor, creating an entertaining experience that will bring smiles and laughter to children of all ages.
