Why Do We Love Jokes?

Jokes have been a part of human culture for centuries. From ancient times to the present day, people have always enjoyed a good laugh. But have you ever wondered why we love jokes so much? Well, the answer lies in the way humor affects us.

A well-told joke can instantly uplift our spirits, lighten our mood, and bring people together. Laughing releases endorphins, the feel-good hormones that reduce stress and increase happiness. Jokes also have the power to break the ice and create a sense of camaraderie, making them a perfect addition to any celebration.
