To quote the author...

"Let me preface this by saying that I have not attempted to compose a work of totally 'original' tips and effects. I have accumulated this material from a number of sources, primarily via many years of reading and being a student of magic. I do not view myself as a teacher, but as one who shares what I have discovered with others."

"You will see a few tips and effects that you have seen in other works and in other forms. I have put my twists on them and published the revised versions here for you to rediscover. I have found that one of the primary joys of magic is the process of rediscovery... reading something that you originally read many years ago, but with a little added 'something' that makes it seem new."

"That said... some of the effects and tips are original, and I hope to take this work as a whole and use it as a tool to nudge your personal performances and love of magic in a slightly different direction."
