

Save The Humans: Rob Stewart - A Hero for Our Planet

Rob Stewart, a renowned Canadian filmmaker, biologist, and ocean conservationist, dedicated his life to raising awareness about the importance of protecting our oceans and preserving the delicate balance of our planet's ecosystems. With his groundbreaking documentary, Sharkwater, he shed light on the hidden world of sharks and their crucial role in maintaining a healthy marine environment. Rob's tireless efforts and passion for conservation made him a true hero for the human race.

The Man on a Mission

Rob Stewart's journey began in 2006 when he embarked on a mission to dispel the misconceptions surrounding sharks. With his in-depth research and captivating storytelling, he revealed the devastating truth behind shark hunting and the impact it had on our oceans.

In his documentary, Sharkwater, Rob exposed the brutal practice of shark finning, where millions of sharks are killed each year for their fins. He risked his own life to capture footage of illegal shark hunting, navigating through risky waters and infiltrating criminal organizations involved in this illicit trade.

Through his film, Rob Stewart not only educated viewers about the horrifying realities of shark finning but also highlighted the interconnectedness of all marine life. He portrayed sharks as invaluable guardians of the ocean, emphasizing their role in maintaining the delicate balance of marine ecosystems.

A Catalyst for Change

Sharkwater ignited a global movement to protect sharks and save our oceans. Rob's powerful message resonated with audiences worldwide, generating an outpour of support for marine conservation efforts.

The documentary prompted numerous countries to ban shark finning and introduced stricter regulations to protect sharks. Rob's advocacy influenced policymakers, scientists, and individuals to recognize the urgent need to preserve our marine environments for future generations.

Rob Stewart's impact extended beyond the big screen. In addition to his films, he gave captivating speeches, organized beach cleanups, and collaborated with environmental organizations to promote sustainable practices. His advocacy efforts inspired countless individuals to take action and become stewards of our planet.

Continuing the Legacy

Tragically, Rob Stewart lost his life while diving off the Florida Keys during the filming of his final documentary, Sharkwater Extinction, in 2017. His passing was a devastating loss for the conservation community. However, his legacy lives on through his films, books, and the ongoing work of the Rob Stewart Sharkwater Foundation.

The foundation continues Rob's mission, driving change and protecting marine life. Through education, outreach programs, and conservation initiatives, they aim to safeguard our oceans and inspire the next generation of environmental leaders.

Rob Stewart's visionary work and enduring passion serve as a reminder that individuals can create significant positive change. His legacy inspires us to recognize our responsibility as stewards of the planet, urging us to take action to protect the natural world for future generations.

Rob Stewart gifted the world with his groundbreaking documentaries that brought attention to the intricate beauty and importance of our fragile ecosystems. Through his tireless efforts, he championed the cause of marine conservation, fighting to save our oceans and, ultimately, ourselves.

Rob's remarkable journey serves as an inspiration for us all, compelling us to reassess our impact on the environment and take a proactive approach towards preserving our planet's biodiversity. We owe it to future generations to continue his work and safeguard the wonders that inhabit our oceans.

In Save the Humans, award-winning documentary filmmaker Rob Stewart tells his captivating life-story-so-far—from self-professed “animal nerd” to one of the world’s leading environmental activists, from a person whose sole focus was saving his beloved sharks to a mission to save us all.

Rob Stewart has always been in love with creatures, the odder or more misunderstood the better. His passion for all living things, including Satan, his 7-foot-long, 80-pound pet water monitor, has led him around the world, as a university student studying zoology in Kenya, as a wildlife photographer in Madagascar and Southeast Asia, and ultimately as a documentary filmmaker in the Pacific shooting his innovative and award-winning documentary Sharkwater. Risking arrest and mafia reprisal in Costa Rica, nearly losing a leg to flesh-eating disease in Panama and getting lost at sea in the remote Galapagos Islands, Stewart is living proof that the best way to create change in the world is to dive in over your head.

His documentary sparked shark fin bans around the world, but his story doesn’t end with saving sharks. Stewart has set his sights on a slightly bigger goal—saving the human species. He has criss-crossed the globe to meet with the visionaries, entrepreneurs, scientists and children working to solve our environmental crises, and his message is clear: the revolution to save humanity has started and the only thing missing is you!
