A short story for children of all ages (15 min read).

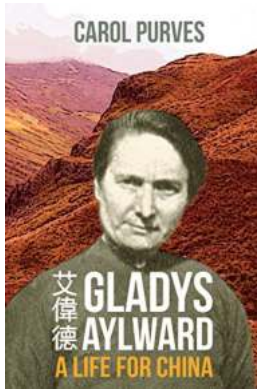

One day, some of the animals that live at the King's house, decide to use an old bucket and a plank of wood left behind by builders to make a seesaw. Once finished, they all love playing on the seesaw but one animal (Murray the pig) loves playing on it more than the others. His love of seesawing doesn't go unnoticed and neither does the peculiar effect it seems to be having on him. The ordinary act of seesawing seems to be producing extraordinary results.
