He has rubbed shoulders with Presidents, Prime Ministers, Kings, and the wisest of all men. He is also acquainted with the worst that humanity has to offer. He was given up for adoption at birth, and raised by Holocaust survivors.

Furthermore, he has been challenged visually from birth, and classified as legally blind. He has searched for the answers to many questions that plagued him all his life. His questions are not typical and neither is he. His search unfolds over sixty four years, on three continents and ten time zones. It is a roller coaster ride with its share of success and defeat, joy and grief. Heaven and Hell are visited within these pages. The book begins to speak. It asks, "Will you read me? "Be advised, the roller coaster leaves once you are buckled in. . .
